

Corey Yep is a Senior Policy Analyst with the Department of Toxic Substances Control, Office of Legislation and Regulatory Policy. She has over 20 years of environmental experience, both as a regulator and as head of environmental compliance at another state agency. She has a Bachelor of Arts degree in biology with a minor in chemistry from the California State University, Sacramento, and is a Registered Environmental Assessor. Current projects include project manager for the methamphetamine health-based target remediation clean up standard, green chemistry, legislative analyses, toxics in products, and improving efficiencies within the department.